

MyPath Newsletter #2

June 2023

Dear readers,

we are delighted to provide you with the second edition of our newsletter, updating you on the progress of our project MyPath focused on "Career planning: inclusion of well and/or higher qualified migrant/minority women into the labor market."

Since our last newsletter, we have achieved significant milestones. Here are the highlights:

1. Completion of Local Testing

We are excited to announce the successful completion of the local testing phase for the Training Kit. Participants had the opportunity to explore the resources and provide valuable feedback, ensuring the Training Kit's effectiveness in supporting migrant/minority women in their career planning and integration into the labor market. The feedback received has been instrumental in fine-tuning the content and making it more relevant to their needs.

2. Mentoring Sessions in Full Swing

Mentoring sessions are now underway in all four partnering countries: Germany, Austria, Bulgaria, and Portugal. These sessions provide personalized support and guidance to participants, assisting them in their career development journey. The mentors, with their expertise and experience, are dedicated to empowering women and facilitating their successful entry into the labor market.

3. Finalization of Role Model Videos:

Our partners are in the final stages of preparing role model videos featuring inspiring stories of successful migrant/minority women who have overcome challenges and achieved career success. These videos serve as powerful motivation for other women facing similar circumstances. By showcasing the participants' achievements and experiences, we aim to inspire and encourage women to pursue their professional aspirations.

4. Productive Third Transnational Partner Meeting

In April 2023, we held the third transnational partner meeting in Lisbon, Portugal. During this meeting, partners engaged in fruitful discussions regarding the challenges faced during the local trainings, achievements, and progress made thus far. The effectiveness of the mentoring sessions was also evaluated, leading to valuable insights for further improvement. Additionally, the partners finalized the modus and structure of the role model videos, ensuring they effectively convey the intended messages and inspire women to pursue their career goals.

Planning for Multiplier Events and Project Promotion

In the transnational partner meeting, we also dedicated time to discuss the dates and formats for upcoming multiplier events. These events will provide platforms for sharing project results, best practices, and success stories with a broader audience. We also discussed strategies for effectively promoting the project outcomes, both locally and internationally, to raise awareness about the importance of inclusion in the labor market.

We express our gratitude to all the parties interested in the project for their support and dedication to this important initiative. By working together, we can make a positive impact on the lives of migrant/minority women seeking meaningful careers and promoting inclusivity in the labor market.
